The CCS is coming to your community to deliver the next in a series of National Heart Failure workshops. The CCS is inviting health care professionals in your community, and from across Canada, to get involved in the future of heart failure management.

Your colleagues from across Canada have already responded enthusiastically to this national initiative:

- 80% of workshop participants have rated the workshops as very good or excellent
- 82% of workshop participants increased their knowledge of heart failure
- 86% of workshop participants recommended it to their colleagues

Physicians, trainees, nurses, and pharmacists are invited to participate in this innovative and interactive workshop. During this 2-hour hands-on session, your job will be to develop strategies for optimal implementation of the 2006 CCS Heart Failure Consensus Recommendations. Your work will contribute directly to the establishment of benchmarks for the care of your patients. The CCS is making a long-term and ongoing commitment to the process of establishing, promoting, and assessing evidence-based recommendations for the treatment of heart failure. The success of this process depends on your involvement, so please join us on June 16, 2006 in Toronto, Ontario.

This workshop is being held during the 9th Annual Toronto International Heart Failure Summit, which runs from June 14 to 16, 2006 in Toronto, Ontario.
